

Specialties

Objective

To form nursing specialists who, by interacting along with diverse multi-professional health teams, be capable of conducting high-quality practice to address the specialized nursing attention demands of the populations.

Presentation:

The Unique Plan of Nursing Specializations is integrated by 13 specific study plans which correspond to the different nursing knowledge fields. Each of these plans is constituted by 10 academic activities – 5 per semester – which the students have to fulfill. The study plans include 78% of practical activities related to what the students will face in real situations, and which they have to solve by using their new specific knowledge and skills in order to provide high-quality specialized care.

The following are the nursing specialty programs offered by the National Nursing and Obstetrics:

- Cardiovascular
- Perinatal
- Public Health
- Infant
- Adult in Critical Condition
- Senior Adult
- Rehabilitation
- Attention at Home
- Neurology
- Sports and Physical Culture
